Aug. 29

The Hokkaido government opened a Hokkaido Foreign Resident Support Center in its annex building. It aims to be the one-stop place for foreigners who need to consult about work, medical care, taxes, etc. The city of Sapporo will also offer the same services at the Sapporo International Communication Plaza, which is happened to be located nearby.

Aug. 30

Hokkaido University, the National Museum of Nature and Science, and other institutes jointly announced that a new whale species has been discovered in the Sea of Okhotsk. It was named the Black Baird's beaked whale, or in Japanese "Kurotsuchikujira." It has been 5 years since the last news species was found, and the 90th species recognized by the World Marine Mammal Science conference.

Sep. 2

The Japanese and Russian governments are talking about cooperation for a possible new incineration plant built on Kunashiri Island, one of the Northern Territories. It is the Russian side that is strongly suggesting the new business as a part of joint economic activities on the northern territories, however, talks are needed regarding the cost for the project and which side will bear it.

Sep. 6

A Hadrosaurid dinosaur found in Mukawa Town was officially recognized as a new kind of dinosaur (nicknamed Mukawa-ryu), and is officially the largest dinosaur in Japan. The fossil of its remains were found in Hokkaido, Japan, so the dinosaur's scientific name is "Kamuisaurus Japonics", with "Kamui" in Ainu meaning "god."

Sep. 9

Co-op Sapporo was denied to be a recipient of a rebate program that offsets the consumption tax increase in October by the Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry. Stores must register with the government to join the program. Even though Co-op Sapporo meets the requirements, its business scale was determined to be the same size as a major corporation, which are excluded from the program.

Hello Asahikawa!

Name: Harry Mugun
Home Country: Kenya
Interviewed: 7/25/2019

If you live in Asahikawa or are just passing through and would like to be interviewed for "Hello Asahikawa," email us at cir_kokusai@city.asahikawa.hokkaido.jp

AIC: Hello Harry, where are you from?

Harry: I come from Kericho county, in Kenya.

AIC: What brings you to Japan?

Harry: Through JICA's program: Health System Management for Regional and District Officers. I came to Japan because I'm a district officer in my county and country.

AIC: Is this training related directly to your work?

Harry: Yes, in every aspect. I'm at the management level and also work in clinical services.

AIC: What aspects of this training have been specifically useful for your work?

Harry: Specifically, the history of where Japan has come from in terms of their health infrastructure. Whether it be their organizational, educational, and culture and policies. Learning about this has been most interesting for me because those are places where we still have challenges where I'm from.

AIC: Are there any big differences between Asahikawa and where you live?

Harry: Yes, there are many differences. Asahikawa is much more developed in terms of infrastructure, the reliability of their water supply, recycling, access to electricity, road networks, waste collection, disposal, and processing, and forests.

AIC: Of the food you've eaten here, what has been your favorite so far?

Harry: My favorite has been the pork. Well fried, well done, and very sweet. It is very different from how we prepare pork in Kenya. Almost everything else is similar. Same ingredients and same rice, but their way of cooking is slightly different.

AIC: The pork here is really great, isn't it? What are your hobbies?

Harry: In my free time I like playing badminton. Sadly, there are not many badminton players around, and not many sports arenas for badminton. I like traveling, too, but unfortunately I don't have a driver's license or a car in Japan. Otherwise I would go for trips on weekends.

AIC: Where do you like to travel?
Harry: Mostly within the country. We have nice resorts, game parks, and picnic areas. My favorite places are forests and trails where there is a lot of green, natural scenery.

AIC: You must like Hokkaido! There's a lot of nature here.
Harry: I wish I had a little more free time to explore Hokkaido. I'd like to drive around, park somewhere, take a walk in the forest.

AIC: What languages do you speak?
Harry: English, Swahili, and my native language, which is Kalenjin.

AIC: How long do you plan to be in Asahikawa?
Harry: We're on a fixed program, so we have two more weeks in Asahikawa.

AIC: Is there anything you want to do before you leave?
Harry: I want to see more scenery, like at the zoo, parks, and rivers. If I have the chance, I want to do that one of the weekends.

AIC: Is there anything you miss about your home country?
Harry: Definitely. My family, because I'm really attached to them. We don't have SIM cards here for our mobile devices. We only have data, which limits how we can communicate with our families to just chatting. There are very few video and face calls. I also miss my favorite foods.

AIC: Food is important. What do you miss?
Harry: We have cornmeal, which is ground, white maize that is made into a thick paste with hot water. I wish I had photos or I'd share some with you (laughs).

AIC: Have you participated in any fun activities here?
Harry: We had some trips where we went to shopping centers or very big malls. Some ponds like the Blue Pond. Some flower farms, rice farms, and some factories. All of those are memorable to me. And of course, the awesome lecturers. They went into great detail about Japan and its history, so everything has been memorable. It was really well planned.

AIC: That's all I have. Thank you so much!
Harry: You're welcome. It's been a pleasure.

Explore Asahikawa!

In our October edition of Explore Asahikawa, we interviewed Maria, the owner of Cocina de Maria. What led to the opening of the first Filipino restaurant in Asahikawa? Read more about Cocina de Maria and Maria's thoughts in the interview below!

Cocina de Maria

AIC: Did you think you would become a restaurant owner when you were younger?
Maria: I had a lot of experience with food when I was a child. I sold various sweets around the neighborhood because my mom was a very good cook. It wasn't my dream, but sweets right now are my specialty. We have a dessert made with coconut and purple sweet potato called "sapin-sapin." It is one of the best desserts in the Philippines. We always use coconut milk when making various sweets. There is one called "biko" that is a brown color and is made out of rice, coconut milk and cane sugar. It takes time to make but it's very good. The best one however, is "sapin-sapin."

AIC: How did you get involved with cooking?
Maria: I moved to Asahikawa around 20 years ago, and I got a lot of experience cooking Japanese, Filipino, and Korean food. I realized that I wanted to open my own shop, not work for other people. Cooking is one of my hobbies, and food is life, so I want to make delicious food for my customers. What makes me the happiest is when they tell me how much they enjoyed the food.

AIC: Why did you open a restaurant?
Maria: There are no restaurants in Asahikawa that serve Filipino food, so I thought it should open my own. Before opening the restaurant, I had my friends try the sweets that I made. If they didn't like them, then I probably wouldn't have opened up the restaurant. I ran into a lot of people who were also Filipino, and they helped me taste the different foods. At first it was a hobby, but thanks to everyone's help, I turned it into a business!

More soups coming next month!

AIC: What kind of foods can you eat at Cocina de Maria?
Maria: About 80% is Filipino home cooking. However, we have a ¥500 lunch for our Japanese menu items, and a lot of people come to eat that because it's such a good price. On the 11th, 12th, and 13th, all of our standard menu items become ¥600, so a lot of people come to try Filipino cuisine. People often ask me "Why the 11th, 12th, and 13th?" Well, the 11th is the anniversary of our opening day, and the 13th is my day of birth. Not including the 12th just seemed kind of sad (laughs), so that's why we do our discounted lunch special on those three days. Next month I will prepare more dishes. Most of them will be different soups, and one will be like Japanese "nabe."

AIC: What are your lunch recommendations?
Maria: Lately, I have been recommending the “adobong manok” for customers who want to eat while drinking beer. It is chicken sautéed with garlic and olive oil. For lunch, I recommend the “pinakbet” and the “ginataang hipon.” Everyone wants to eat the “ginataang hipon.” It is a shrimp and vegetable soup made with coconut milk, but it’s not spicy. I also recommend the “sarciadong” tilapia. It’s a little expensive so not many people try it, but today one of my customers ordered it. During the rainy season, I recommend the “ginataang hipon” because it warms you up.

Ginataang hipon is a lunch favorite!

AIC: What are the most popular desserts here?
Maria: “Sapin-sapin” of course, but I hardly ever serve the most popular dessert in the Philippines because nobody here likes it. It’s a fruit salad. Japanese people don’t like food that is too sweet, and there are a lot of tropical fruits in it. Sweet foods are popular in the Philippines, but Japanese people are concerned about their health. Whenever I serve it, people tell me it’s too sweet. That’s why I serve veggies instead. In America, people don’t care about that.

AIC: We’ll eat anything (laughs). What is your favorite part about your job?
Maria: My favorite part of the job is talking to the customers. I want to try my best to make first-time customers feel welcome because they may be nervous, even if it’s just a smile. Talking with the customers is definitely the most fun.

AIC: What kind of hardships have you had in terms of opening your business?
Maria: It was so stressful. I lost a lot of weight! I went from 68kg to 61kg in 2 months (laughs). I had to organize most everything by myself. It also cost a lot of money. I even went to city hall to ask for advice on how to plan everything. Once we opened, we started getting a few customers and from there it has been steadily growing. Now I’m going to try my best to keep it going. This will be my last challenge! I want to try even harder.

Filipino-style Yakisoba has been a recent hit!

AIC: Do you have any goals from here on out?
Maria: I want to have even more and more customers. With the consumption tax increase next month, I need to talk with customers about the price increases. As long I receive support from everyone, I want to be able to take this restaurant even further. I’d like to make it even bigger and employ more people, but we can’t accept many new hires yet. I also want to stay open a little later until 10pm.

AIC: If you wake up early and work until 10pm, you're going to be exhausted, won't you?

Maria: I'm used to it. I've been working like this my whole life, even on weekends. I might prepare some more dishes if I decide to stay open late like an izakaya. It depends on what the customers want to snack on. We also have a big room in the back that's going mostly unused, and I want to use it for large parties. I think about 15 people could fit. We usually have some people come late who work at the Asahikawa City Hospital. I close down at 4pm and reopen at 6pm. I can stay up until 10pm, but if I stay up any later I would be so tired the next day. I'm no spring chicken (laughs).

Turon (Fried banana rolls) are a popular Filipino snack

AIC: You're plenty young!

Maria: I feel young! (laughs)

AIC: Lastly, could you please give a message to our readers?

Maria: We get some foreign people that come to our restaurant every once in a while. If you ever want to try Filipino food, please stop by! It may not suit your taste, but I'd like for you to come give it a taste!

We would like to thank Maria of Cocina de Maria for granting us the opportunity for an interview. You can give them a visit at:
